"School for Scandal"—G. H. S.

TO Edward E. Hylton, one of the staunchest supporters of Garfield High School, and a man loved and honored by every Garfield student, we, the class of 1915, dedicate our Benedictus.

"A Happy Pair"—Caleb Radcliff and "Twin" McCullough

FOREWORD

YOU have before you the "Benedictus" of the class of 1915. It has been our effort to give a comprehensive record of the 1914-15 events of Garfield High School and to add a few dabs here and there, which will show the spirit and general atmosphere of our school. If, in your opinion, we have attained any success in this undertaking, we beg to remind you that much of the credit is due to the three under-classes and the faculty, who have so heartily cooperated with us, and the advertisers who have supported us so generously in a financial way. If, in your opinion, the 1915 book is a failure, we humbly apologize and hope you will remember that "we have done our durndest."

Garfield High School

In September 1912, Garfield High School was opened to the students of the north end of Terre Haute. It was built as a solution to the problem of relieving the over-flowing condition at Wiley, and it was quite timely in accomplishing its purpose. Both the students and the north-end patrons were delighted with the new building. Every one seemed immediately to feel a personal interest in the school which apparently has never waned. Both the principals, Mr. Highley and Mr. Records, have proved themselves eminently well-fitted for the positions they have held; and, indeed, the entire faculty has proved satisfactory. The building itself also has many unique advantages for which the many friends of the institution feel a pardonable pride.

"The Dancing Girl"—Marie Levering

The thing that appeals to the student body as a whole perhaps more than anything else is the athletic facilities offered. There are two gymnasiums, one for the boys and one for the girls, each provided with an ample dressing room containing dressing racks and shower-baths. The gymnasiums are not as large as might have been desirable, but so far have answered their purpose satisfactorily. Behind the building is a large plot of ground which is used for a gridiron in the fall and for tennis courts, base-ball diamond, and running track in the spring. No doubt, the excellent athletic showing Garfield has made so far is due in part, at least, to the stimulus afforded by these advantages.

Printing is the newest and most novel course offered at the school. A good-sized press operated either by electricity or foot-power, with several cases of type, was installed last fall. Several boys and a few girls entered the printing class immediately and from that time on the shop has been kept busy. It prints the "Garfield Review," a popular semi-monthly publication, as well as tickets, programmes, registration blanks and other miscellaneous school work.

The manual training department is another great favorite with the boys. It is composed of two rooms, one containing drawing outfits and supplies and the other work-benches where the actual work is done. The department has turned out many very creditable pieces of work in the form of library tables, porch swings, tabarets, etc.

For the girls both sewing and cooking departments are provided. The cooking room contains a full equipment with gas burners in addition to a large range. The girls have served a number of luncheons prepared entirely by themselves which have been pronounced very successful by those who attended them. The sewing class has also proved quite popular. It has machines and cutting tables. Each girl has a locker for her sewing outfit and there are two large cases in which they keep their work. There are 34 girls taking this course, which shows how well-liked it is by the feminine half of the Garfield family.

The building is laid out somewhat in the form of a square arch laid horizontally with the auditorium representing the open space, and halls and class rooms the other part. At the northwest and northeast corners of the building on both floors are large, well-lighted study rooms. Those on the northeast corner still serve in that capacity, but the others have been divided in half, the upper one containing the Senior session room and a mathematics recitation room, and the lower the commercial and botany departments. In the front on the first floor are the office and the branch library. The latter is open to the public and the large collection of books has been used constantly since it opened.

Upstairs over these rooms are the chemistry and physics laboratories. The chemistry laboratory is well equipped in every way and can comfortably accommodate 12 people and, if necessary, more than that. The physics room has not as yet all the equipment really necessary, but it is hoped that within a very short time it will have as complete an outfit as any of the other departments.

The rest of the first and second floors is taken up with class rooms.

The auditorium is a spacious place with a seating capacity of about 550. The stage is fairly large and the rooms back of it are arranged so as to serve conveniently for dressing rooms when theatricals are being given by the students. There have been mass meetings in the auditorium not less than two weeks apart and sometimes much oftener for the last year. These meetings do much to promote school spirit and create an interest in school activities aside from school work proper and they are quite popular with the students.

"The Twin Sisters"— Ruby and Ruth.

The student activities are manifold and there is an exceedingly small number of people in Garfield who have not an interest in at least one of the many organizations, such as the Orchestra, the Glee Club, the Tennis Club, the Public Speaking Society, etc. Thus every student feels that he is really a part of the school and has a personal responsibility in the well-being of the school. Combine this spirit with the stimulus afforded by the vocational courses offered by Garfield, and it is easy to see why the school has been so eminently successful thus far.

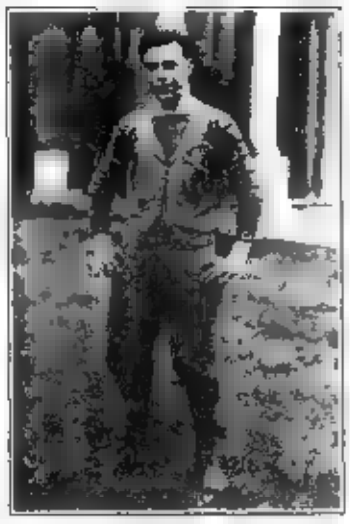
ATHLETICS



ROBERT HICKLIN, Capt

Football, 1914

This years athletic teams have been the best in Garfield's history She enjoyed a remarkably successful football season The most prominent obstacle overcome by the purple and white warriors was their lack of weight In practically all of her games she was out-weighed on an average of 10 pounds to the man, but what the team lacked in weight it made up for in speed, and as a result she was not fairly beaten by any team in Indiana. It is true she lost to Linton, but as that team was later declared ineligible, it has no bearing on her record. Oakland, an Illinois team, was the only team which did defeat Garfield fairly, and they out-weighed the men from Terre Haute by a large margin. The best home game of the season was probably the one in which Robinson was defeated 18-12. The next two games with Jasonville and Bloomfield, respectively, Garfield also put on the right side of the ledger. She ended up the season in a blaze of glory by defeating Brazil 40-0 before 3 car loads of rooters who accompanied the team

The following men received "Gs":—Hicklin, Capt., Q B., Tingley, F. B ; Davis, H B , Floyd, C ; Conover, H. B , Natterhouse, T ; Canine, E ; Arbaugh, E.; Perkins, G , Leatherman, T ; Welch, T., Loser, G , Harris, Q B ; Farmer, F B Shea and Broderick received honorable mention for their good work

Below is the record

Garfield	18	Robinson	12
Garfield	51	Jasonville	0
Garfield	18	Linton	31
Garfield	16	Bloomfield	7
Garfield	14	Oakland	16

Basketball, 1914-1915

Owing to the meligibility of several basketball stars, the team got away to a bad start. Garfield lost the first two games, but with the return of Gammon and Nash to the fold came back strong in the third encounter She kept up this pace throughout the season, losing only three of the remaining games. These went to Vincennes, Brazil and Clinton, respectively. She had already defeated Brazil in a previous encounter, and took another from Rockville Following her defeat by Brazil, she won two games from Sullivan and closed the season with brilliant victories over Normal and the Paris Tigers.

Considering the handicap under which the team started the showing made is quite satisfactory

The following men received basketball "Gs":— Floyd, Capt., F; Nash, F; Gammon, C.; Rhoads, G., Davis, G; Owen, G; Burns F., Conover, G Pence, G

Girls' Basketball, 1914-1915

The girls' basketball team has been rather unfortunate in not being able to secure games, but the girls have enjoyed the season very much, nevertheless. A large number of girls took part in the indoor sport this year, and they played mostly among themselves. There were only two scheduled contests, one with the South Side Independents, composed chiefly of Wiley girls, and one with Clinton. In both of these games the Garfield girls were victorious. Miss Hanley did not pick a regular varsity squad, but said that if she did, it would probably contain the following players: Mae Andrews, Evelyn Dunsford, centers, Ruth Franke, Edith Lawson, Anna Eddy, Verna Cook, forwards, Thirza Jones, Floy Zerwick, Lula Waggoner, and Olive Carter, guards

Track, 1914

Garfield's 1914 track team was one of the best in the state. She took part in three meets, coming out first in two of them and second in the third Captain Smith, Conover, and Cooper represented the school in the dashes, Nitterhouse, Floyd, and Yatsko in the weights, McKee and Fortune in the pole vault, Shannon and Oxford in the long runs, Frey in the broad jump, high jump, hurdles, and 440 yard dash, Nitterhouse in the high jump, and Conover in the broad jump. Prospects for the 1915 team are just as bright, and with Capt Conover at the helm, Garfield should enjoy another successful season

Following is the record of the 1914 team

Athlectic Association

The Association began the 1914 season under numerous difficulties, the most serious of which a deficit of forty dollars and only the partial support of the student body. However, in spite of the various fluctuations of spirit, the membership has grown beyond the average. The meetings, although not as well attended as might have been expected, did not lack enthusiasm. At the close of the basketball season the association was financially a success, having a surplus of twenty-five dollars, and it is reasonably safe to suppose that when the 1915 football season opens, there will be a margin to work upon instead of a deficit.

ACT I.

SCENE Before the Star refreshment villa

ENTER TINGLIUS, alone

Tinglius Ye Gods, I fain would die On the morrow will the fair Dutchess be in the stadium to cheer the hosts of Garfield, while I her hero, do but witness the mighty contest from the outer wall as a mere citizen Would that the curses of a mortal could avail against the hated Adelia, and the accursed Harriet O fain, would I die!

ENTER HANKO, the scribe.

Hanko Why is this sad and woeful look upon thy noble visage, O Tinglius? Hast the fair Dutchess given thee the clammy mitt? Tell me ere I explode with anxiety.

Tinglius No beloved Hanko 'Tis nought of mortals The Gods have turned against me I am flunked Though I have studied valiantly, staggered I but lamely through my German praises to Adelia and unhappily did I forget to hand in my note-book of tribute to Harriet When the revered Recordo made known the records of us wretched worshipers at the temple of knowledge I received from Harriet and Adelia a black-ball I am flunked! Tomorrow in your yellow sheet must you declare that the noble Tinglius is again in bad with the Gods On Saturday can he not perform deeds of might on the gridiron? Valor will return to the hearts of the Lintonians and the hosts of Garfield will lose the contest And O Hanko, the fair Dutchess will be in the stadium and I, her hero, will not perform!

ENTER BERNARDO, hastily

Bernardo with arm outstretched toward

Tinglius: Tinglius, thou art a dub! Thou didst not concentrate. Saturday will my athletes lose to the Lintonians because thou didst not pay proper tribute to the Gods. Thou art a dub. [Exit]

Enter Doggia, Srofius and Charlo

Charlo: Why this downcast look, O Tinglius? Hast thou lost thy Dutch poem book or hast thou not the price of a hamburger?

Hanko: Cease thy silly prating, corpulent lobster. The valiant Tinglius has incurred the disfavor of the Gods. He cannot enter the mighty contest Saturday. (All groan.)

Tinglius: And the fair Dutchess will be in the stadium.

Srofius: Ah, it is tough. Methinks we will be out of luck.

Doggia: These silly rulings of the Gods give me a pain.

Charlo, with finger to forehead in attitude of thought: Silence, brothers. I would but think. Ah, I have it! It is easy. Exam, that is the word, Exam! Tinglius, thou must take an Exam.

Hanko, scornfully: Methought perhaps thou really hadst an idea, thou bloated jelly fish. Thou knowest quite well that Tinglius is no true worshiper at the shrine of knowledge. In his studies is he well nigh as rotten as thou, thou ignorant boob. Tinglius cannot withstand the test.

Doggia: Yea, Charlo, an Exam can Tinglius not take?

Srofius: Ah, thou childish simps. You have not the gray matter of a cat fish. I am a wise old head. I have thought it out.

Tinglius: Speak, noble Srofius, ere I am consumed with curiosity.

All: Hear, Hear. Srofius speaketh.

Srofius, mounting bench and speaking solemnly: Friends, thou knowest Pencethenes. In his praises to Adela is he a cat. He speleth German like the Kaiser. That Exam could he pass as easily as a man falleth from a log. The ears of Pencethenes waggle to and fro with the agility of a leap frog. When Tinglius entereth Adela's sanctum can Pencethenes not accompany him in a remote corner and wiggle his ears? It is a pipe.

Doggia: Srofius, thou hast a brain.

Hanko: Srofius, thou hast more intelligence than thy looks indicate

Tinglius: Srofius, thou hast, indeed, a head!

Charlo: Let us search for Pencethenes ere he depart

All: Yea, let us find Pencethenes at once [All Exit.]

ACT II

SCENE: Shrine of Adelia

Adelia sits musingly on her throne

ENTER TINGLIUS.

Adelia: So, Tinglius, thou comest to take thy Exam? I fain would pass thee, but I fear thou hast not faithfully performed thy devotions to me. Yet, will I give thee one more chance. Prepare for the worst

Tinglius, sitting humbly at her feet: Ah, fair Adelia, make it light. Diligently have I studied, but thy German can I not grasp But this vain lingering is of no avail Let er flicker (Glances toward entrance.)

Adelia: Der, die, oder das Mann?

Tinglius, looking anxiously toward entrance: Die Mann

Adelia: Wrong, Tinglius Think thou over this one Der die, oder das Kind?

Tinglius: Der Kind Ting., deeply moved, with anxiety gazes toward entrance

Adelia: Thou art again wrong. Der, die, oder das Hand?

Tinglius: Das Hand

(Rises in seat and looks imploringly toward door.)

Adelia: Wrong again. Why this unseemly behavior, O Tinglius?

ENTER PENCETHENES, quietly Goes toward desk and takes dictionary Tinglius sighs with relief

Pencethenes, meekly taking seat: Greetings, fair Adelia I would consult thy word book

Adelia: Thou art welcome, Pencethenes. Tinglius, let us continue. Der, die, oder das Tisch?

Tinglius glances toward Pencethenes. The ears of Pencethenes wiggle once

Tinglius: Der Tisch

Adelia: Right Tinglius. Thou hast well guessed Try another Der, die, oder das Madchen Tinglius glances toward Pencethenes. The ears of Pencethenes waggle thrice.

Tinglius: Das Madchen.

Adelia: Again, hast thou well guessed Der, die, oder das Frau?

Tinglius glances toward Pencethenes. The ears of Pencethenes waggle twice. Tinglius answers correctly. Exam continues thus to end.

Tinglius answers all questions correctly. At end—

Adelia: Thy Exam is over and thou hast passed with an high grade. Tinglius, thou art a wonder. Methought thou hadst not such intelligence. Let us retire and break the glad news to Bernardo.

[Exit Ting and Adelia.]

Pencethenes, chuckling knowingly: Yea, Tinglius, thou art a wonder. [Exit.]

ACT III

SCENE: Srofius and Pencethenes sit on high board structure with backs to audience and witness contest between Lintonians and hosts from Garfield. Shouts are heard.

Srofius: Why this unseemly shouting? Ah, Tinglius maketh another touchdown. The battle is ours. We have won, Pencethenes. Hearest thou?

Pencethenes: Yea, we have won but what care I? What honor do I, a mere citizen, get from the victory?

ENTER howling Garfield mob. Tinglius in gridiron armor borne on shoulders of crowd. The Dutchess, Hanko, Charlo, and others in crowd.

Charlo: Tinglius, thou hittest the battle-front of the Lintonians like a ton of brick.

Hanko: Brothers, how soundest this for my writing in the yellow sheet on the morrow? "Tinglius, the mighty Garfield plunger, was easily the star of the contest. He broke through the Lintonians for gain after gain."

The Dutchess interrupting: Tinglius, my hero, thine am I for ever more. Thy gallant conduct hath won my heart.

All: All hail, Tinglius, the valiant warrior of Garfield. [Crowd Exit.]

Pencethenes, dejectedly: Brains and faithful devotion count for but little in this vain world. Tinglius picketh off the grapes while we the master minds who gave him glory, do but grovel in the dust. Srofius, am I not right?

Srofius: Thou hast said it, O Pencethenes.

Pencethenes: But why this useless prating, Srofius? It availeth nothing. Hast thou a jitney?

Srofius: Again hast thou said.

Pencethenes: Let us hie to the Star Villa and appease our hunger with a hamburger.

Srofius: Hamburger she is.

[Exit Hurriedly.]

The 1915 Class of Garfield

Old Garfield High, good-bye, good-bye,
We re going to leave you soon,
If we can pass, we Senior class
We'll graduate in June
We've had our fun—but that is done,
So far as you re concerned,
We've had our bumps, likewise our slumps
That's part of what we've learned
We hate to leave, we really grieve,
We feel attached to you

You represent much time—how spent
That s past let s not review
We ve spent four years of hopes and fears
Within your classic walls,
You ve done your best, we ll do the rest,
The big, wide world now calls
To those behind who ve still to grind
For one year, two, or three
Be kind and good because they should Come out as smart as we

Little Citizens — Carl Kreitenstein and Charlie Depeugh

NOW you have seen our book Whether you liked it or not, you can readily appreciate that substantial financial backing was required to put it out The men and firms whose advertisements follow were the ones who supplied this backing Please give their ads your most careful consideration and show them that their confidence in Garfield students and Garfield patrons was not misplaced
